For the past 15 years of her career, Chantal has coached leaders to better understand themselves and their impact, identify how they most want to grow to enhance their effectiveness, and build skill in navigating the ever-increasing complexity of their roles with more ease.

Chantal began her career in the non-profit world: building and leading teams, creating and codifying systems in start-ups, and scaling social venture proof of concept models. Prior to joining Next Step Partners she served as the in-house Executive Coach with Teach For America to over 50 Executive Directors throughout the country. Now she supports leaders across all industries – from technology start-ups to foundations. She coaches senior leaders 1:1 and facilitates singular and multi-month leadership development programs to help teams navigate change and build deeper interpersonal trust.

She earned a BA from Georgetown University, an MBA from UC Berkeley's Haas School of Business and she co-authored the Stanford Social Innovation Review article 'Freeing the Social Entrepreneur.' Chantal received her coaching certification from the Coaches Training Institute.

Having grown up abroad, Chantal loves exploring unfamiliar places far away and embarking on adventures close to home. She lives in Oakland, CA with her husband and three children.
